OLYMPIA PARK IS SELECTED FOR THE MERCHANTS' PICNIC.

This Decision Was Reached at a Meeting of the Local Association Which Was Held Last Evening.

JULY 31 IS FIXED AS DATE.

Fact That Many Improvements Have Been Made at Olympia and the Facility With Which People Can Reach Park Points in Its Favor.

For the third time in as many years Olympia Park has been selected as the place for holding the Merchants' Picnic. This was decided upon at a meeting of the Connellsville and New Haven Merchants' Association, held in the Y. M. C. A. building on Thursday evening. On July 31 the town will be practically closed while the merchants, their customers and friends take a day off to enjoy a trip to the popular pleasure resort down the Yough. Cascade Park at New Castle was a close competitor for the honor, but the three hours' ride each way is a little too much, the merchants thought.

The many improvements at Olympia, however, will make it seem like another place this season. Since the West Penn Railways Company has taken charge of the grounds and placed O. C. Hartley, an experienced park manager, in command, many new features have been inaugurated and the grounds have undergone a thorough renovation.

At the meeting Thursday evening Superintendent J. W. Brown and O. C. Hartley, representing the West Penn, and Traveling Passenger Agent C. W. Allen and H. L. Douglas, representing the B. & O. were present and argued in favor of Olympia. Their proposition, a good one, was accepted after a long discussion. The fare will be the same as usual, 75 cents for adults and 40 cents for children.

Routine business was transacted at the meeting, which was not largely attended owing to the rain. One new member was elected.

APPEALS TAKEN

In Recent Suits of A. Overholt & Company and Others Against Big Insurance Companies.

UNIONTOWN, Apr. 5.—The appeal papers have been filed here in the suits of A. Overholt & Company and Johnson & Gorley against the various insurance companies. The defendants are taking the cases to the Supreme Court of the State, where they will continue the fight. In the Fayette county courts verdicts in favor of the plaintiffs were returned. These suits grow out of the burning of the Exchange Hotel in Uniontown and the Overholt distillery at Broad Ford several months ago.

Bernard McGraw, the young man from Trotter who was sent up, presumably of unsound mind, has been released from the county jail and will be taken care of by friends. He was sent to Dixmont, where Superintendent Hutchinson declared him perfectly sane.

John, James B. and William M. Sterling of Masontown have filed an answer to the equity suit brought against them by Andrew J. Sterling. The plaintiff claimed that he gave them property in trust in exchange for a loan when he was in financial difficulty, but in their answer they declare they took the property outright when they advanced him the needed money. Claiming the transaction to have been made in good faith, they ask that the bill be dismissed.

This afternoon testimony will be resumed in the Fairchance powder cases. A large number of witnesses for the prosecutors will be called, they being principally residents of Fairchance and vicinity. It is expected that the hearings will be concluded today.

MOB AT GREENSBURG.

Attempt Is Made to Lynch an Alleged Firebug But Officers Save Him.

GREENSBURG, Apr. 5.—[Special.] Oliver Burd, who is alleged to be a firebug, was saved from a lynching last evening by the prompt action of Officers Edward Kepple and Charles Kidder. It was claimed that Burd had turned in three alarms from one box and was endeavoring to turn in a fourth when he was caught.

There was a large amount of paint on his hands when he was arrested. While on the way to the jail a big crowd collected and cries of "lynch him" were heard on all sides. The officers, however, managed to get the man to safety. There have been several mysterious fires in Greensburg during the last few days.

HILL UNDER ARREST.

Man Who Sold Harriman Letter Must Answer in Court.

NEW YORK, Apr. 5.—[Special.]—Frank Hill, a former employe of E. H. Harriman, who was arrested yesterday on complaint that he had sold a copy of the famous Harriman letter to Sidney Webster, was arraigned in the Tombs court today. The case was continued until Monday morning when evidence will be heard.

A postponment was at the request of Mr. Harriman's attorney. Hill gave bail and was released.

NO ELOPEMENT.

Someone Played Joke on Young People Through Newspapers.

In both the daily newspapers of Connellsville yesterday there appeared an announcement of the double elopement of Miss Belle Dye and Henry S. Carson and Miss Clara Pierce and Grover C. Leapline. The announcement was sent both papers by someone who signed herself Mrs. John Mock, which was likely fictitious, since there was not a word of truth in the elopement. All of the parties mentioned are acquainted, but they say no elopement has ever been mentioned.

If the author of the information is learned, the joke she played may not be so funny in the end. There is a law that provides ample punishment for anyone who furnishes false information to the newspapers.

FOUGHT AND RAN.

Constable Joe Crossland Made a Good Guess on John Pryor's Destination Thursday.

John Pryor was given a hearing this morning and committed to jail by Squire W. F. Clark for committing an assault and battery on Frank Girard of Baldwin avenue, from whom he rented a house. Pryor went to Mr. Girard's home yesterday and started a fuction. He then disappeared. Thinking that he would go to Indian Creek, Constable Joseph Crossland boarded the afternoon Cumberland Accommodation. Pryor got on at Gibson Station and was immediately placed under arrest.

Tony Rohle, a B. &O. employe was arrested Thursday afternoon for stealing brass. A revolver was found on him and W. T. Bayless made information before Squire W. F. Clark charging carrying concealed weapons.

Things One Would Rather Have Left Unsaid—Which One?

BAND'S INSPECTION.

Boys Made a Very Good Showing Before Inspecting Officer.

DRILLED AN HOUR ON STREET.

Major Jefferis, Colonel James E. Barnett, Captain Henry Coulter and Drum Major Dixon Put the Musicians Through Their Stunts.

The Connellsville Military band, official musical organization of the Tenth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, underwent its first inspection in a drizzling rain on West Main street Thursday evening, Major Samuel W. Jefferis of the Second Brigade being the inspecting officer. Accompanying Major Jefferis was Major B. W. Atkinson of the Fourth Infantry, United States Army, who is taking the place of Captain Hamilton. Captain Hutchison conducted other inspections, but was recently appointed Quartermaster of his regiment and transferred to Governor's Island, New York Major Atkinson came from Washington, D. C., and is conducting inspections throughout the State.

The band was in charge of Drum Major J. F. Dixon, who put it through the evolutions. From a musical standpoint the work of the band was entirely satisfactory to the inspectors but the foot movements were open to some slight criticism because of lack of practise. Speaking of the matter Thursday evening, Major Dixon stated that if he could have had the band for half an hour before the inspectors arrived there would not have been a hitch. As it was, he was compelled to drill the boys immediately upon his arrival here. The men did exceptionally well and were highly praised by Major Atkinson, who with Major Jefferis, fully appreciated the handicap under which the boys labored.

Speaking to a reporter shortly after the inspection, Major Atkinson stated his opinion that with a little more training the Connellsville band will make one of the best musical organizations in the National Guard of the State.

Col. James E. Barnett of the Tenth Regiment was present, as was Capt Henry Coulter, the Regimental Quartermaster. After the band inspection Colonel Barnet, Major Jefferis and Captain Coulter went to the armory where they watched Company D drill for a while.

For an hour the band boys were under the keen and searching eyes of the inspecting officers. Their manoeuvers were watched with interest by a large crowd of spectators. The men acquitted themselves with no little credit. The drizzling rain was something of a handicap but in spite of this the boys made good. There were 25 men in line.

Deal for Whitecrow.

If Whitecrow is awarded Greensburg, Manager Mulkey of the Connellsville team will open negotiations to trade an infielder for him. Greensburg needs a good infielder. Whitecrow is the Indian who is twirling good ball for Carlisle this season.

Bob Hannam's Horn.

One of the features of the band inspection last evening was Bob Hannam's new double bass horn. It cost $115 and is the finest musical instrument in town. Bob got some fine music out of it last night.

BOYS GET A CHECK.

They Subscribed $50 and C. W. Mauk Doubled the Sum.

This morning the Connellsville High School Association received a check for $50 from General Manager C. W. Mauk of A. Overholt & Company, this being equal to the amount subscribed by the school boys for their athletic fund. Mr. Mauk agreed to double the sum up to $50 the boys might subscribe, but his name was withheld.

The lads immediately got busy and within a week had raised the needed sum. The money will be used to finance the athletic teams. Mr. Mauk has always taken an interest in the High School here and is anxious to give the embryo athletes all the assistance possible. He was awarded a vote of thanks for his kind donation.

AN AGREEMENT

Reached Between Railroad Management and Employes on Western Railroads.

Special to The Courier.

CHICAGO, Apr. 5.—The differences between the Western railroads and the members of the Order of Conductors and of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, were finally adjusted yesterday. The men abandoned their demand for a nine-hour work day and the railroads made advances over their previous propositions in the pay of baggagemen, flagmen and brakemen of $2.50 per month. The original demands of the men were for an increase of 12 per cent, and for a working day of nine hours. The managers offered an increase in pay of 10 per cent, and declined to grant the nine-hour day.

The agreement was reached mainly through the efforts of Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission and Commissioner Neill of the United States Bureau of Labor. They formulated the final proposition and the adjustment was chiefly due to their labors. The new agreement which goes into effect on April 1, and is retrospective for the first three days of the month, is in part as follows:

The pay of conductors in the passenger service to be increased $10 per month; baggagemen, $7.50; brakemen, $6.50. Overtime in the passenger service to be allowed at the rate of 35 cents per hour for conductors; 22 cents for baggagemen, flagmen and brakemen.

The pay of conductors and brakemen in through and irregular freight, local freight and mixed train service to be 10 per cent. over the rates in effect November 1, 1906, and 100 miles or less, ten hours or less to constitute a day in such service. One hundred miles or less, ten hours or less, are to constitute a day's work in helper or pusher, and construction train service; overtime is to be paid pro rata.

STORK AT WORK.

Three New Babies Arrive in Connellsville During the Past Twenty-Four Hours.

The stork has been working overtime in this vicinity during the past 24 hours. As a consequence there has been a dull movement in the cigar market. The proud fathers are handing them out lavishly this morning. Two of the new arrivals are girls and one a boy.

At seven o'clock this morning a baby girl, tipping the scales at nine pounds, arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shaw of Pulaski street. A girl also arrived last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Horwitz of Johnston avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Scott of Eighth street were presented with a bouncing baby boy Thursday.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK,

Ties Placed on West Penn Track Discovered by Motorman Davin.

CAR CROWDED WITH PASSENGERS

Half Hundred Ties Placed at Intervals in the Vicinity of Coolspring Would Have Caused Bad Accident Had the Car Struck Them Last Evening.

The keen eye of Motorman James Davin probably saved several lives Thursday evening shortly after eight o'clock by detecting a pile of ties placed on the rails of the West Penn Railways between Coolspring switch and Sullivan's crossing by wreckers, evidently with fiendish design. Motorman Davin began speeding up, taking advantage of a slight down grade. Upon reaching the curve just a few yards north of Sullivan's crossing he noticed several ties across the rails. Throwing on the emergency brake he brought the car to a standstill, coming to a halt just as the front wheels touched the first tie. The sudden jolt caused the passengers to lurch heavily forward They were unhurt.

Investigation showed that half a hundred ties had been placed across the tracks in piles at intervals of a few feet. Had the car struck them at full speed fatal injuries would undoubtedly have resulted. The motorman, conductor and several passengers removed the obstructions. The ties were piled beside the tracks by men from the mountains, they being stored there by the company. They are being used on the Lochrone extension.

MEN WANT THE OLD SCALE.

Local Hotels Have a Good Supply of the Amber Beverage on Hand and Danger of Shortage Not Yet Imminent—Resolution of Brewers.

In accordance with a telegram received at 6 o'clock Thursday evening from the headquarters in Pittsburg of the Brewery Workers' Union, every union employe of breweries in the county walked out this morning and as a consequence all the plants in the region are tied up. The strike is general throughout Western Pennsylvania. In Fayette county there has not been one defection from the union ranks so far. The only man who did not walk out is the engineer at the Pittsburg Brewing Company's plant at Uniontown, who does not belong to the union. The strikers include brewers, bottlers, drivers, engineers and firemen. They are demanding an eight hour day, the bottlers want $3 more a week and the others $1 more. The brewers say they have granted these demands but are not willing to have the men drink beer on the company's time. The strikers say the brewers have agreed to nothing except the old scale.

In Connellsville the tieup is complete. At the Pittsburg Brewing Company's plant about 30 men walked out. Superintendent J. D. Madigan is acting as engineer while an Italian is firing. No wagons are being driven today. About the same number of men walked out of the Yough Brewing Company's plant at the same time. There even the pipe fitters have quit on the job. The same situation exists throughout the Pittsburg district. About 75 breweries are effected.

The local retailers will not be affected for a while yet. In anticipation of trouble a large quantity of beer was stored in the cellars and this work has been going on for the past several days. Hundreds of kegs and cases have been delivered to the hotels and there will not be a beer famine for several days as yet. By the time the present supply is exhausted the strike may be over, or the brewers may have solved the question by securing non-union men. The strikers declare that they will stick out for their demands to the last ditch while the brewers contend they have given in to every reasonable contention and are willing to arbitrate.

Although the brewers maintain that they will not be seriously handicapped by the strike, the drivers and other workmen that were to have been on hand this morning to fill the strikers' places, according to statements made Tuesday, failed to materialize. No wagons are running and the plants are shut down. In some places feeble efforts are being made to run, but for the most part the breweries are idle.

From Pittsburg comes the statement that the Brewery Workers' Union may lose its charter in the American Federation of Labor. This union includes men who should, it is claimed, belong to other unions. For instance, the stationary engineers claim the brewery engineers should be affiliated with their order and not the Brewery Workers' Union, the same holding good concerning the teamsters and others. According to a decision rendered at the Milwaukee Convention a few months ago, the Brewers must comply with this rule of turning the men over to their proper organizations or forfeit their charter.

RUSH BILL THROUGH.

House Steals March on Railroad Lobby and Passes Railway Measure.

STRONG AMENDMENT ATTACHED

Which Prohibits Railroads in Pennsylvania From Increasing Capitalization Without Consent of Proposed State Railroad Commission—Vote Unanimous.

Special to The Courier.

HARRISBURG, Apr. 5.—The House passed finally the Dunsmore Railroad Commission bill and it will be received in the Senate Monday. The bill was reached on the third reading calendar, and on motion of Mr. Blakeslee an amendment was inserted providing that before a railroad company can make an increase of capital stock or indebtedness, the same must have been approved by the Commission. The Commission will also have power to reduce the amount of the issue or prohibit it altogether.

Mr. Dunsmore and Mr. Kloss of Lycoming, acting Chairman of the Railroads Committee, opposed the amendment on the ground that it would delay final passage till next Tuesday, but on motion of Mr. Creasy of Columbia the amendment was later accepted and the bill made a special order on final passage for 9.30 o'clock Friday morning.

A conference of the leaders during recess, however, resulted in the bill being rushed hastily through the printers' hands with the Blakeslee amendment and taken to the House as quickly as possible. It reached there at 5 o'clock last evening and was then taken up on final passage, the votes being 153 to 0.

A committee report was rejected in the House for the first time this session. The Manufacturers' Committee reported favorably the Habgood Child Labor bill with minor amendments. Mr. Townsend of Philadelphia, author of another child labor bill, raised the point of order that the report was irregular because the committee had been in session while the house was in session without first obtaining permission of the House as required by the rules. Speaker McClain sustained Mr. Townsend and sent the bill back to the committee. After some discussion the House fixed May 16 as the day for final adjournment.

The Senate held a brief session for the consideration of bills on first and second reading. After clearing the calendar the Senate adjourned until Monday night.

Governor Stuart vetoed the bill granting an annuity of $120 to Deborah E. Green Childs, daughter of a soldier in the war of 1812, who is not entitled to a pension from the National or State governments. The Governor's veto says: "In my judgment it is not good policy for the State to grant individual annuities. While this may be a very worthy case, yet others which may be equally as worthy are not provided for."

The coal tax bill will be reported out of the Ways and Means Committee in the morning. It has been amended to fix the tax on bituminous coal at one-half cent a ton. Anthracite remains at three cents. The committee has also put out the McClain bills to return the personal property tax and the liquor license fees to the counties. The personal property tax bill was amended to return all but five per cent.

The Lydick primary election bill is being amended in committee. Speaker McClain is having a provision put in that the candidates for United States Senator must submit their names to the voters at the spring primaries in the year preceding a Senatorial election.

The House passed finally the McLane second-class township Road Supervisors' bill. It is one of the measures promised the people.

Governor Stuart today received a protest from President McCrea of the Pennsylvania railroad against the two-cent rate bill. The executive declined to make public the statement unless privilege to release is given by Mr. McCrea. The Governor has until Saturday to act on the bill. He will sign it.

Mr. Treutle's condition seems to be improving. His skull was not fractured, although he evidently fell full on his head.

A South Bend Watch Frozen in Solid Ice Keeps Perfect Time

Your jeweler has a costly chronometer which he expects to keep absolutely perfect time.

He places this chronometer under glass, in a perfectly horizontal position and at an even temperature. He disturbs it just as little as possible because he knows, probably from experience, that it would be easily affected by change of conditions, and such a chronometer, carefully guarded and cared for, WILL keep time to the minutest fraction of a second.

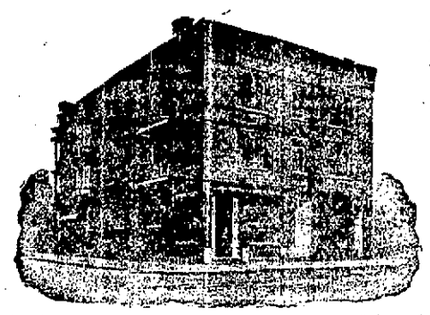

Every adjusted South Bend Watch must, before it is sent out to your jeweler, keep perfect time second for second with one of these master timepieces—BUT—it must keep this chronometer time under the conditions of every-day life. Indeed, it must stand, before leaving the factory, without failure in the slightest degree, tests that are twice as wearing as any watch ever received in ordinary use.

It is baked in an oven heated to 100 degrees Fahrenheit and kept for hours in a refrigerator at freezing point and must not vary even a second.

You might freeze it in a block of ice without affecting its timekeeping qualities in the slightest degree.

Every South Bend Watch must also keep perfect time in every position and not be affected by the jars and jolts of railway trains, horseback riding, automobiling, etc. We guarantee them to be perfect timekeepers. Sold by all first-class dealers.

Catching Butterflies.

To catch butterflies you must reach out after them. As a rule you won't catch many in your hand. You must use a net. It is the net that scoops them in.

A hand reach in catching butterflies is no better than a handbill in catching business. It is the net that counts.

The net is the newspaper. This reaches out to all the people and scoops them in. Experience of several generations has shown that the newspaper is the best business bringer.

Take, for instance, this paper. (Most people take it.) An announcement in this paper goes into the homes of the people whom you must reach if you get the business you are after.

There is, indeed, a very much larger net that scoops in the business butterflies. It is stretched out not only over this community, but over every similar community in the land. It is the mail order net, made up of big catalogues and of advertisements in periodicals which are circulated broadcast to catch the unwary.

To prevent that great net—which is really an octopus with a thousand tentacles—from catching your trade away from you, wisdom suggests that you use your home net—the local newspaper.

Usually a word to the wise is sufficient.

If you want to keep your patronage or build it up, you must compete with the butterfly catchers from the outside.

The Dollar is the Butterfly. It has green wings, and is attractive to merchants in the big cities just as it is attractive to you.

If you would catch these pretty butterflies that are circulating around home, you must use the net that circulates around home.

Could anything be plainer?

By THOMAS W. LAWSON

Author of "Frenzied Finance".

A Story of Passionate Love and Money Madness

The hero is a daring young broker who retrieves the fortunes of the family of the woman he loves, a beautiful daughter of the South (they have been victims of "The System,") with the greatest "coup" in the history of "The Street." The fever of money madness and the curse of speculation run throughout the story. This terrific conflict between character and money, and the shifting and glittering background of frenzied finance, makes a novel which would be absorbing to every man and woman were it by an unknown author. Being by Mr. Lawson, it will undoubtedly be the most discussed story of our generation.

THE $5,000,000 POLITICAL COMBINE.

A $5,000,000 Trust Combine is alleged to have been formed against the Roosevelt policies and in favor of a reactionary President to succeed him and tear down the work of railway and other regulation he has builded up.

Stranger things have happened. The story recently published in The Courier, entitled, "The Plum Tree," was fiction; but if the story of the Anti-Roosevelt Combine is correct, the promoters of that gigantic political scheme are following the plot of the story and trying to make fact out of fiction.

President Roosevelt has repeatedly declared that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for another term, presumably out of respect for the time-honored custom, the example of the immortal Washington himself, which forbids the Presidency three times to one citizen. Grant was a great man, but even he could not break down this custom. It is true that Roosevelt has been elected by the people but once, and has not served full two terms as Chief Magistrate, but he has preferred to retire rather than run the risk of even the suspicion of offending the Unwritten Law.

There is no reasonable doubt as to his entire sincerity in this, but he may by the sheer force of public sentiment be compelled to give ear to the proposition for another term. It will be unfortunate for him if he is placed in this position, since a portion of the suspecting public will never believe otherwise than that the whole thing is a political plot designed to reflect him.

Whatever betides, it is to be hoped that the people will not permit themselves to loose for one moment the firm grip they have upon their rights, thanks to the strength and firmness of a strenuous and perhaps at times an impetuous President, but one whose clean robe has never yet been smirched with dishonesty or faithlessness.

EQUALIZING TAX VALUATIONS.

The proposal of the County Commissioners to equalize coal valuations throughout the county is merely a declaration of their intention to do their plain duty. One of the grave defects in our system of assessing property for purposes of taxation is that various assessors have various views and it seems impossible to harmonize them. The only remedy under existing laws lies with the Commissioners, who have the power of recasting and equalizing them.

If every assessor in Pennsylvania would follow the letter of the law and value property at its actual worth, assessments would bear an equitable relation to each other, but as we have heretofore pointed out the effect of this would be an inevitable and material increase of taxation, carrying with it the temptation to public extravagance.

It is true that taxes would not necessarily need be increased, since the millage might be lowered in proportion to the increase in valuations, but the allurement would be irresistible to make the rate sufficient to raise a larger revenue than ever before for the multitudinous demands always made upon the public officials and which are for the most part now avoided by reason of the fact that the rate is already up to the limit.

Take the borough of Connellsville, for example. The limit of taxation for borough purposes is now ten mills. This has been the tax levy for a quarter of a century or longer. Assessment of the real estate at actual cash value would almost double the aggregate valuation. Would the tax levy be reduced to five mills? Would not the numerous demands for improvements which would seem necessary move the Town Council to adding still further to the rate. The temptation would be too great. The rate would increase in spite of the best intentions of the best men of the borough, and it would continue to increase until the legal limit was reached again and our taxes doubled.

The only solution of the problem apparent to us is the remedy suggested in these columns recently, namely, to amend the law and require assessments to be made on the basis of one-half or two-thirds the actual value of the property, and then to enforce the law to the letter.

JUSTIFIED PUBLIC JUDGMENT.

The commission appointed to inquire into the present mental condition of Harry Thaw has justified public judgment by reporting him capable of advising with his counsel and understanding the nature of his position.

The interrupted trial will now go on, but whatever may be the verdict detention in a criminal insane asylum will not be the fate of the defendant. He will either be convicted or acquitted, and upon the testimony thus far adduced his acquittal seems inevitable.

District Attorney Jerome's manifest bias against the prisoner and his evident desire to avenge his dead friend, Stanford White, rather than to administer the laws justly, have apparently overreached themselves.

CLEANING A PLAGUE-SPOT.

The announcement is made that the Tenderloin district will be eliminated, its ramshackly houses demolished and replaced by modern brick tenements. It will be a moral and physical cleaning of a plague-spot and it is a consummation devoutly to be wished.

Better houses and paved streets will make it a convenient and desirable residence place for tenants of moderate means and good habits. The improvements contemplated by its owner will not only reflect credit upon herself, but will return her better revenues than she now receives.

A TRICK OF FINANCE.

Councilman Stillwagon's inquiry, How can we pay $900 worth of bills with $300 in the Treasury? was not asked for information, but merely to embarrass the opposition. Councilman Stillwagon knows how to work the financial trick. He has often done it in the Town Council.

The certificate of indebtedness is one of the old revenue-raisers that never failed. Then there is that other way, the one the Library Trustees are obliged to adopt, namely, to pass the bills payable out of "the first funds available."

Independent trolley lines are promised to all Southern Fayette. The proposition is no doubt a good one, but local interests should bear in mind that having a look does not necessarily mean having a trolley system. Even capital has a fashion of tumbling off the trolley.

The beer wagon has been tied up, but the water wagon is running regularly.

The State Railroad Commission did not have the appearance of being a party measure when it came to the voting. Everybody was for it. Some of the Democrats will find permanent seats on the Republican band wagon before the session is over.

The bridge company has appealed. It's a habit the bridge company has.

The Roosevelt administration has another big strike settlement to its credit. "The victories of peace are no less renowned than those of war." The President is having a little war on the side, but he seems to be a winner all around.

Stop, look and read the label is a good rule for those who are compelled to take medicine.

Connellsville merchants are enlarging their storerooms to meet their increasing trade. This is the shopping center of the coke region.

Society is shaking itself.

Don't borrow trouble. It's bad enough to have to borrow money.

Jerome demanded a lunacy commission and pled for it with tears in his eyes. Now he challenges its finding and wants it set aside. Some people are hard to please.

Pullman fares are to be regulated too.

The President is willing to have the campaign fund of 1904 investigated; also the campaign fund of 1908.

The Legislature wants to make it a sin to water railroad stocks. Promoters and high financiers will soon have to go out of business.

There is a disposition at Harrisburg to place the matter of choosing a United States Senator in the hands of the people. The referendum is getting popular.

Thaw's wedding anniversary dispelled the dark shadow of Matteawan.

The Assembly family at Harrisburg is not as peaceful and happy as it ought to be. The House is calling the Senate the "House of Lords."

In The Carpet Room.

We want you to get better acquainted with this department in this store. It ought to be worth something to you to know something about the kind of goods we sell in this upstairs room of ours. From now on we expect to be busy, real busy, but not so busy but that we can take time to show you the kind of carpets and curtains and rugs we have in this department. One way to get carpet knowledge is to come and see this display. Another way is to ask your neighbor about the quality of our carpets, how they are made and laid. If you are going to spend your money this spring in carpets or rugs you owe it to your pocketbook to find out all you can about carpets and rugs. We are at all times ready to tell you about and show you the carpets and rugs we have here.

Stinson Tapestry Carpet and Stinson Velvet Carpet.

For over thirty years this store has handled this make of carpets and in all that time we have never had a serious complaint as to the wearing qualities of this make of carpet. Most everybody in this neighborhood knows something about Stinson carpets, and if you've a carpet thought for this spring it will be easy for you to get the opinion of some one who has a carpet of this make. As to prices, in spite of the advance in everything, they remain the same as last year, $1.10 for the Tapestry and $1.25 for the velvet, and that means made, laid and lined for these prices.

9x12 Rugs.

We have a pretty fair assortment of these for you to choose from, just now more perhaps than we will have later on. Starting with a Tapestry Rug at $16.00; then Stinson Tapestry Rugs at $22.00; Stinson Velvet Rugs at $25.00; Bigelow Electra Rugs at $27.00; Body Brussels Rugs at $25.00 to $32.00, and Wilton Rugs at $40.00 and $45.00. We've a collection of rugs here that are worth seeing if you have a rug thought. Patterns that you will not see shown elsewhere in this vicinity.

Mattings.

Shipped direct to us from China and Japan with just one party to have a profit between us and the makers. We believe we can sell you better mattings for the money than you can buy elsewhere in this vicinity. Way for you to find out is to come and see the mattings and learn the prices. Never had a prettier line of patterns to show you than we have this season.

Lace Curtains.

Starting at $1.00 the pair and from that on up as far as you care to go. We've an assortment of curtains here that's worth seeing and worth buying. We call special attention to the curtains we have here at $2.00 the pair and ask you to compare them with any you can find shown elsewhere at from 50 c to 75c more the pair. It has always been a hobby with us to have some special values at this price of $2.00 and these for this season are more than ordinarily good for this price.

Linoleums.

Wild's Linoleums in patterns particularly suited for bath rooms and kitchens—60c a yard for the printed and $1.50 the yard for the inlaid.

Chief of Police Frank McCudden Accommodates a Foreigner

WHO WANTED TO GO TO JAIL.

Contractors Get Busy on Improvements to Be Made the Coming Summer—W. C. T. U. Members Attending Institute at Greensburg Today.

SCOTTDALE, Apr. 5.—Chief of Police Frank McCudden found an Italian, Friday, near the P. R. R. station, who was very anxious to be sent to jail in Pittsburg. This was asking too much but the man was accommodated so far as Scottdale could do it, by being put in the lockup. The stranger gave his name as Louis Goetz, or so it sounded, and said that he was a shoemaker. He pleaded that someone wanted to kill him, that he was blamed for something that he did not do, and that he wanted to be sent to jail in Pittsburg. He seemed to be mildly demented and several Italians who were in to see him could get no further information than the above from him. In the afternoon Philip Ricketti was found to have hired the man the day previous to come from Pittsburg to work in his shoemaker shop. The fellow worked about half the day and then said he was going back to Pittsburg. As he had $2.15 he was put on the train in the afternoon and started for Pittsburg. It was evidently a case of mild dementia.

TO CURE THAT COLD

Local Druggist's Suggestion.

Said Druggist W. M. Porter, "This is the season for coughs and colds, and for the benefit of Connellsville people we want to tell them the best means for a cure.

"Don't dose the stomach with cough syrups. It's no use, they only soothe a little—upset the stomach and do not heal.

"The best cure we know is Vinol, which contains in a highly concentrated form all of the healing, curative elements taken from genuine fresh cods' livers, without a drop of oil to upset the stomach and retard its work. It contains no stomach-ic drugs whatever. Vinol heals, cures and strengthens the sore lungs and bronchial tubes. It makes rich, red blood, builds up the appetite and creates strength. In fact it is the best remedy we have ever sold in our store for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all lung affections.

"We ask every person in Connellsville who has a chronic cough or hard cold to try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if they are not satisfied." W. M. Porter Druggist.

Note.—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Connellsville, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

READY! Come, Spring Housefurnishers, and See How Well We've Prepared for You.

A few real Spring days have had their effect on this business, and now we've cast off our moorings and swung out into the mid-stream of what is sure to be this big carpet and furniture house's biggest season's trade. We have prepared for more business and we doubt not one whit that it will come.

The feeling of confidence with which our patrons make purchases is the strongest kind of a tribute to this establishment and its methods of operation. There's confidence in this store's merchandise—in the most modest priced lines as well as the finer and most luxuriant. There's confidence in qualities here, the deep-rooted brand of confidence. And then our prices. The wage earner, and the man of means as well, know that they can positively buy here to better advantage than elsewhere. Now, if you do not know these things through experience, you owe it to yourself to investigate, and you have a standing invitation to look, you know.

If you are moving into a new home or refurnishing the old one, we can save you money without sacrificing appearance or comfort. Let us beautify your home. With larger and more varied stocks than ever before, we are ready for the Spring season of 1907.

Bright Spring Carpet Patterns.

In a wealth of colorings and fabrics that cannot be equaled in Connellsville. In fact there are very few cities the size of ours in the State that can boast such a showing.

Tapestry Brussels Carpets

A popular line that's eminently satisfactory. The patterns and colors carry the earmarks of highest priced fabrics, being reproductions of the newest designs. Patterns for hall or stairs as well as for rooms; plenty of choice, too. Price, per yard, $1.00 and $1.10. Then we have good wearing qualities at 85c and 90c, and others still lower in price.

The Famous Ingrains

In our great line of All-Wool Ingrains at 75c and 85c we show all the new patterns in the best colorings, the latter being particularly adapted to the latest in wall papers.

Then we have All-Wool Filling Ingrains (colors guaranteed fast) in a variety of patterns suitable for any room, at 58c and 63c. Still lower priced ones, desirable for bed rooms, where wear is not so severe, at 30c to 43c.

Fine Body Brussels

In this, the fabric that the particular housewife has adhered to and for years recognized as the standard of excellence—in Body Brussels we show more and better patterns than in any previous season. The designs are suited to rooms, halls and stairs, as well as for special rug-making. The best grade sells at $1.50 per yard.

Velvets and Axminsters

The rich, soft, elegant effects that are possible in these Pile Carpets were never brought out in a more convincing manner than in the big assortment gathered here. The designs, too, are much ahead of former seasons and, all in all, we don't think you'll be able to point out a single weak feature in the entire line. We know that you won't find such varieties elsewhere, nor will you find such low prices on such good carpets, $1.12½ to $1.50.

As Usual We Will Sew, Lay, and Line Carpets Free of Charge

Room Rugs $1.50 to $36. Brimful of new designs in the many grades. The 9x12 size retains its prestige because of its general utility. However our lines of larger and smaller sizes are complete, and if per chance your size is not here our facilities for making special sizes or odd shapes were never better. Including Tapestry, Brussels, Velvets, Body Brussels, Axminsters, Saraks, American Orientals and Wiltons.

Great Furniture Assortment.

Yes, they are larger than this store ever before exhibited, but with heavy buying they're bound to dwindle, and "First buyers get first choice" was never more in point. Make your selections this week. We'll store without charge and deliver when you direct.

Why You Should Bank Here.

A bank is what its directors make it—its strength depends largely upon their experience, judgment and responsibility—its growth upon the time, thought and effort they devote to it.

The directors of this bank are well-known business men of this city, large holders of the bank's stock, therefore deeply interested in its stability and progress. They keep in constant touch with its affairs by constant meetings. This is one feature to be considered when selecting a banking house.

A MAKER OF HISTORY

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM,

Author of "The Master Mummer," "A Prince of Sinners," "Mysterious Mr. Sabin," "Anna the Adventuress," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by LITTLE, BROWN, and COMPANY.

"I don't want you to blame yourself in any way, Duncombe," he said. "You could not possibly have guessed the sort of thing you were up against. But the fact remains that my offense is in having sent my friends up to the Cafe Montmartre on your account and in being suspected of rendering you further assistance in your search for those two marvelous young English people."

"You are not joking by any chance, are you?" Duncombe asked gravely.

"The matter," Spencer replied, "does not appear to me to lend itself to anything of the sort."

Duncombe buried his head in his hands for several moments.

"Great heavens!" he murmured. "Let me think. I can't tell you how sorry I am, old chap. Can't the thing be explained? As a matter of fact, you were discretion itself."

"I don't want it explained," Spencer said, "even if it would do any good, which it wouldn't. I should have retired in any case in less than a year, and, as it is, I believe my successor is on his way over already. Now, would you like to know why I have come here at this hour of the night to tell you this?"

Duncombe nodded.

"Go on," he said. "Afterward I've something to tell you."

"I've come," Spencer said, "because I'm free now, if you like, to help you. I was interested in your story before. I am ten times more interested in it now. If you still want me I'll do what I can for you."

"Want you! Spencer, do you mean it?" Duncombe exclaimed. "Want you! Why, there's no one I'd rather interest in the affair than you."

"Well, I can promise you my interest is pretty well excited already," Spencer answered. "I'm with you right along. Now tell me where you've been this evening and what's happened."

Duncombe recounted the evening's events. His new ally listened and afterward smoked for a moment or two in silence.

"It is simply wonderful," he declared. "The whole secret service system of Paris is working to cover up the traces of this boy and girl. Their spies of course are everywhere and their organization perfect. The first one of their creatures who tries to break away is Mlle. Flossie. The poor little fool lived for only a few hours afterward. Your bribe was high, but she ought to have known better."

"You mean"—

"Why, of course! The theft of her poor little jewels was only a blind. It was to deceive the public, for as a matter of fact her murderer would have been perfectly safe if he had strolled into the nearest police station and made his report. She was killed because she was going to give you certain information."

Duncombe shuddered.

"Great heaven!" he exclaimed. "Tell me, Spencer, who or what can be at the back of all this? Guy Poynton was simply a healthy minded, not over intelligent young Saxon, unambitious and passionately fond of his home and his country life. He had no friends over here, no interests, no ties of any sort. He was abroad for the first time of his life. He regarded foreign countries and people simply with the tolerant curiosity of the untraveled Britisher. He appears in Paris for one night and disappears, and forthwith all the genius of French espionage seems to have combined to cover up his traces. It is the same with his sister, only as she came afterward it was evidently on his account that she also is drawn into the mystery. What can be the meaning of it, Spencer?"

"My young friend," Spencer said, "I will be frank with you. I have no the least idea. I only know that somehow or other you're up against a big thing. In a week, perhaps a day, I may know more. Meanwhile I want you to go on your way precisely as though you and I had not discussed this matter."

"We may not work together, then?" Duncombe asked.

"Certainly not. You are a marked man everywhere. Every door is closed to you. I shall nominally stick to my post. You must be content to be the actual looker on, though you had better not abandon your inquiries altogether. I will put you up at the Cercle Anglais. It will serve to pass the time, and you may gain information at the most unlikely places. And now good-by."

The liftman thrust a penciled note into his hand as he ascended to his room.

"From I do not know whom, monsieur," he announced. "It was left here by some one. Whom I cannot say."

Duncombe opened it in his dressing room. There was only one sentence:

"Monsieur would be well advised to leave Paris tonight."

CHAPTER XI.

"IN the most unlikely places," Duncombe murmured to himself as he bowed to the Frenchman whose name his friend had mentioned. "I am very glad to meet you again, M. le Baron," he said aloud.

They were in the covered garden at the Ritz. Duncombe had accepted the pressing invitation of an old college friend whom he had met on the boulevards to drop in and be introduced to his wife. And the third at the tea table was M. Louis, known in society apparently as M. le Baron de Suers.

Lady Hadley, his friend's wife, smiled languidly upon them both. She was a frail pink and white little woman with the reputation of a beauty to sustain, wherein lay her life's work.

"You two know each other, of course," she remarked. "Paris is no larger than London, after all."

"Sir George and I have met once at least," the baron said, smiling. "I am glad that he does me the honor of remembering the occasion."

Duncombe felt himself no match for his companion with the foils. He let the conversation drift and waited for his opportunity. Presently some more guests arrived, and Duncombe drew his host on one side.

"Hadley," he said, "how long have you known the baron?"

"Met him at Dorset House about two years ago, I think," Hadley answered. "He was doing a round of country houses. I'm not sure that he didn't stay at Sandringham. One of the real old French families, you know, the De Suers."

Duncombe nodded. There did not seem to be much that he could say. He mingled with the other guests and observed his social duties. But he watched the baron, and he took care that they left together.

"Are you going my way, baron?" he asked as they stepped into the Place Vendome.

"I was going to the Cercle Anglais," the baron answered. "Do you belong?"

"I am up for a month's membership, but I am not elected yet," Duncombe answered.

"Then you shall come in as my guest," the baron declared.

"You are exceedingly kind," Duncombe answered. "I wonder whether I might presume still further upon your good nature and ask you a question."

"The asking," the baron murmured, "involves nothing."

"You bear, I am told, an honorable name, and you are well received in society. Why do you associate with murderers and thieves in that hell of a cafe where I saw you first?"

The baron smiled.

"My friend," he said, "I seek always the life amusing, and I find it there."

"I was robbed before your eyes, baron."

The Frenchman sighed.

"I am so sorry," he said, "that I did not see it. That indeed would have been amusing."

"You know that the young lady who sat with us is dead?"

"A most bizarre happening," the baron assented, with a little sigh. "I cannot imagine how it occurred. The newspaper reports are not convincing. One would like to reconstruct the story, Poor little Flossie! She was most amusing, but just a little, a very little, too fond of flourishing her jewelry. One will miss her though."

"Referring for one moment to our meeting at the cafe. You told me a story there—you and your friend madame—of a young English lady, which the facts seem scarcely to sustain."

The baron sighed.

"My friend," he said, "we did the best we could at a moment's notice. I rather fancied the story myself. As to facts, what have they to do with it? You demanded a story, and you got it. I rather flattered myself that under the circumstances it was not bad."

"You admit now, then, that it was not the truth?"

"The truth! My dear Sir George! Supposing that the whereabouts of your charming young friend had been known to me, do you suppose that I should have permitted myself to have been bullied into disclosing it? Forgive me, if I speak plainly, but if you really wished for information which you supposed that I had your method of seeking it put you at once out of court. A French gentleman does not permit himself to be bullied."

Duncombe was silent for several moments. There were many things which he could have said, but where was the use?

"As a French gentleman, then," he said at last, "will you permit me to make a personal appeal to you? Miss Phyllis Poynton is a young lady in whom I am deeply interested. She was last seen at the Cafe Montmartre, from which place she disappeared. I am an Englishman of your own station. Tell me where I can find her or what has become of her."

"My dear Sir George," the baron said, "you might have saved yourself a great deal of trouble if you had spoken like this to me at the first. Frankly, then, I have not the least idea. Young English ladies come and go every evening at the Cafe Montmartre and such places. One remembers only those who happen to have amused one and not always those. Forgive me if I speak plainly. A young lady who had visited the Cafe Montmartre alone—well, you might look for her anywhere, but most assuredly in that case if your anxiety was to induce her to return to her friends you would be a little too late. Ah! We have arrived. Now, my friend, I must make you free of the place."

Duncombe was fuming with anger, but he had discretion enough to remain silent.

"Do you play bridge?" the baron asked as they entered the card room.

"Occasionally," Duncombe assented.

"I will go and see if I can find any men," the baron remarked. "I will leave my young friend De Bergilac to entertain you. The Vicomte de Bergilac—Sir George Duncombe."

Duncombe shook hands with a pale, weary looking youth, most immaculately dressed, but whose whole appearance was distinguished by marked symptoms of lassitude and ill health. They sat in easy chairs almost opposite to one another, and Duncombe found the other's scrutiny almost embarrassing.

"You speak French perhaps—yes?" the young man asked at length.

"Yes. I speak French," Duncombe admitted.

"Then listen to me," the vicomte said slowly. "I speak as one man of honor to another. Do not play cards in this club."

"Not play cards? Why not?" Duncombe asked, amazed.

"You can take my advice or leave it," the vicomte answered calmly. "I have no explanation to offer you. If you choose to report my remark you would place me in an exceedingly awkward position. You see, I rely upon you as a man of honor."

"I am only too much obliged to you for the hint," Duncombe declared. "But this club—the Cercle Anglais"—

"The club is all right," the vicomte admitted calmly. "I afort-mately there is no place in Paris which would be entirely safe for you. You have the misfortune, you see to be in opposition to some of my friends who have really unlimited opportunities for making things disagreeable for you. Now I am beginning to talk, and it is very foolish of me. Why don't you leave Paris, Sir George?"

"Why should I?" Duncombe asked a little sharply. "I break no laws here. I wrong no one. I am here on my own business, and I only ask to be let alone."

The vicomte regarded him as one might look at a spoiled child whom it was yet advisable to humor.

"Ah," he said, "they will not let you alone. You are so obstinate. Like all your country people or you would recognize it without my risking so much by speaking. You will have to leave Paris and very soon. It is so easily to be managed. A dispute at cards here—you would certainly be in the wrong and an ugly scandal if you were not away in twenty-four hours. It is one method of a thousand."

"You know so much," Duncombe said, "I have no doubt that you know the one thing which I would give years of my life to be satisfied about."

The boy's dark eyes were fixed steadily upon his.

"Sir George," he said, "there is nothing which I can possibly say to you. My warning has been exceedingly foolish, but after all if I can persuade you to leave Paris I shall have done no great harm. As for the cards—well, I must plead guilty to weakness there. I have not the slightest objection to taking the life of a man who is making a nuisance of himself, but his honor I think one should not tamper with. May I offer you a cigarette? Well, Louis, what luck?"

The baron had strolled into the room and was sitting on the arm of a chair.

"It will be all right directly," the baron answered. "We have three, and old D'Arcon has telegraphed that he will be here in five minutes."

Duncombe rose to his feet.

"It was really very careless of me," he said, "but I completely forgot that I had an engagement at the hotel at 6 o'clock. I am afraid that I shall not be able to stop."

The baron glanced quickly at his young friend. There was nothing whatever to be learned, though from his pale, boyish face. His own countenance had darkened for the moment, but he recovered his composure immediately.

"As you will," he answered carelessly. "Perhaps you can drop in later. Come and dine, will you, at half past 8?"

"I am much obliged to you, baron," Duncombe said, "but I cannot accept your invitation. I am a lover of plain speaking so I will not plead a previous engagement. But the one thing I want from you, the thing which I have almost a right to demand, you will not give. I do not feel therefore, that any more than ordinary intercourse is possible between us."

The baron bowed gravely.

"My dear Sir George," he said, "I am answered. I wish I could drive out of your mind that extraordinary hallucination relative to my supposed knowledge of your young English friend. It is impossible. Very good. I shall look forward to a time, Sir George, when we may meet on a better footing."

Duncombe left the hotel with the recollection of that curiously ironic smile fresh in his mind.

GREW MISS LEWIS' HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

The Great Danderine Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results

MISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length when she began using Danderine. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor.

That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It envigorates and fully electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth of the hair.

The following is a reproduction of Miss Lewis' last letter.

January 3, 1905

Dear Doctor Knowlton:—

You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny braid.

I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bros. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it.

Everybody I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation.

Sincerely yours (Miss) EVA LEWIS

Danderine makes the scalp healthy and fertile and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp fertilizer and therefore the greatest hair-producing remedy the world has ever known. It is a natural food and a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a 25c bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. per bottle

FREE. To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to any one who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

FREDERICK FUNSTON,
Brigadier general, United States army, captures of Aguinaldo, also veteran of Spanish-American war.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of voluntary testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements, caused by weakness, overaction of various local organs. Sold by druggists, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glycerine extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of appliances and appliances specially designed and built for his purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other narcotic hurtful or habit-forming drugs. A full list of the ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

LOUISIANA CYCLONE.

Town of Alexandria With 7,000 Inhabitants Is Swept.

LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

Will Be Great, Many Persons Being Caught Up By Storm and Carried for Blocks—Lasted But a Short Time.

DALLAS, Tex., Apr. 5.—[Special.]—It is reported here that a cyclone at Alexandria, La., today killed 20 and injured 100.

The cyclone came upon Alexandria without warning this morning. A wide swath was cut through the town of 7,000 people and extended for miles throughout a rich and populous farming district. Houses were thrown down like cards or were carried away bodily to be dropped in a shapeless mass of timbers with the occupants crushed in the ruins.

The storm lasted but a few minutes, but during its duration men, women, children and animals were caught up in the air and some of them were carried for blocks.

YOUGH BOOMERS.

West Newton Citizens Met With the McKeesport Chamber of Commerce to Present Facts.

A delegation of West Newton citizens met with the McKeesport Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night and held a lengthy discussion of the improvement of the Yough river and additional information was filed which will go into the report to be compiled for Captain Adams, Government Engineer in that district.

Captain Adams asked for specific information covering various points, some of which is difficult to gather and some of which the Chamber of Commerce cannot furnish. Captain Adams asked for this data by April 6, but the committee found it could not report by that time, and it has asked for an extension of time until April 20.

The committee adjourned to meet next Tuesday evening, when it is expected the report for Captain Adams will be ready for compilation.

THAW TRIAL.

The Slayer of Stanford White Now Now Rear, and Anxious to Face Jury for His Life.

Publishers' Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Apr. 5.—With one of the dangers he feared apparently removed through the decision of the Lunacy Commission yesterday declaring him sane, Harry K. Thaw is happy today. He feared Matteawan more than the death chair. With the elimination of the madhouse Thaw is willing to face the jury for his life.

There was only one cloud on the horizon today for Thaw, the possibility that Jerome may further delay his case by appealing to the Supreme court. This action might delay a decision for several weeks. Jerome was not ready this morning to say whether he would make an appeal. Thaw's lawyers do not think any application by Jerome can do more than delay the case.

STABBED COMRADES.

Veteran in Soldiers' Home at Dayton, O., Wields a Knife With Deadly Effect.

Publishers' Press Telegram.

DAYTON, O., Apr. 5.—Five veterans of the Civil War were stabbed last night while asleep in their cots at the Soldiers' Home. Two may die. Wm. H. Huffman of Barricks No. 33 wielded the knife. His mind had been weakened by excessive drinking. He imagined his comrades plotted to kill him. Cries of Huffman's victims attracted the guards and inmates, who overpowered Huffman only after a terrible struggle.

David Calle and James Conners are in a critical condition. John Daugherty, Howard Smith and David Gavin will recover.

PENROSE DENIES

Report That He Leaked on the Rich Man's Conspiracy.

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 5.—[Special.]—"It is an absolute untruth," declared Senator Penrose to a Publishers' Press representative today when asked for a statement as to the published report that he disclosed the tale of the "Rich Man's Conspiracy" to defeat President Roosevelt in politics.

"I have never said any such thing I have always been a supporter of and believer in the Roosevelt administration and its policy."

A STRONG BANK

One Where Safety and Profit Are Assured.

Have you a bank account or do you expect to have one? May we suggest that The First National Bank of Connellsville is a safe and accommodating depository Established in 1876, its resources have steadily grown until they have now reached nearly two millions of dollars. As an indication of the bank's strength it may be noted that while the par value of a share of its capital stock is $100 the market value is $500. A Savings account in such a bank is as safe as a Government bond and earns a higher rate of interest—4 per cent, payable or compounded semi-annually.

PADDY AT LARGE.

For the Second Time He Escapes from County Home and Comes to Connellsville.

Paddy McGee was again at large Thursday. He escaped, for the second time in a few weeks, from the County Home and immediately made his way to Connellsville, where he accumulated an awful jag and sustained several scars and bruises to his physiognomy. In police court this morning Paddy protested that he came down Thursday and went to work immediately after leaving the car. He was directed to scrub his face and rest up for a day or two, after which he will be returned against his vehement protests, to the County Home. The next time he runs off to Connellsville he will be sent to jail. This is the law Burgess Solsson laid down to Patrick, and the Burgess usually keeps his word.

Michael Gorman of town and Andrew Espoy, also of town, both got 48 hours this morning for being drunk.

Frank Wilson was given a hearing Thursday for being drunk and disorderly. They say talk is cheap, but it was expensive to Frank. When he started talking to Burgess Solsson he got 15 hours, but by the time he was through it was extended to five days. Now Frank is looking for Logan Mitts, who pinched him, to give him a heart to heart confidential chat.

Facts Concerning Our Dress Goods Dept.

Comprehensiveness—that's a word that fully tells the story, but it is only understood by those who know the extent and variety of these stocks. We'll relate a few facts that must plainly indicate the completeness of our dress goods department.

There are over five hundred distinct designs and colorings to choose among. There is over two hundred and fifty feet of shelving devoted to dress goods alone. There are dress goods priced from 25c to $2.50 per yard.

And lastly, but least by no means, every piece of dress goods on our shelves today is new, absolutely and dependably new, new in design, new in coloring, new in weave. Emphatically, no matter how large or varied a stock may be, you cannot compare ours with it in a negative way. We buy merchandise at almost as low a price as do the great department stores of Pittsburg. Our selling expenses are less, our lighting and heating is less than theirs.

Result: We can compete with any one anywhere in the selling of dress goods. Our stocks afford every wanted fabric, and good common sense will tell you that we're large enough to demand and get concessions when we buy. It's not hard to reason out why we are increasing our dress goods business when you know the facts. We'll sum it up in eight little words:

"You get what you want at a saving."
